Hey everyone!

So I was tabling at Rose City Comic Con last weekend, in my former home of Portland Oregon.

I wanna thank those who stopped by.
I'd also like to welcome any new readers, who found The Sword Interval after visiting my booth.

HHHIIIII!

I had a crazy-good time,
and got to meet some of the people that run Webtoon,
as well as some creators.

Everyone was so nice!

There's nothing quite like the convention experience.
I'm simultaneously extremely motivated,
and thoroughly exhausted.

Ironically, I've hardly had time to work on comics this week.

In fact I am putting this filler together from my hotel room!

There will be a
new episode next week.
Thanks again for your readership,
regardless of if you're a long-time reader or are just joining us.
